

"An attractive and business-like set of related but highly individual and easily recognisable logos."
Danica Ogrjenovic, Creative Review, writing about the new Railfreight identity.

Locomotives have three livery bands: dark grey for the roof, mid grey for the upper body side and light grey for the lower body side. The existing matt black surround to cab windows is now carried into the cab doors. Grilles are painted dark grey. Grey was selected to provide a neutral background for the brightly coloured sub-sector graphics. Railfreight wagons will be painted grey or remain unpainted metal and, where possible, carry sub-sector markings. In cases where there are practical difficulties in applying the marks, the new paint scheme will still appear.
